The Federal Surplus Property program is dwindling.
Property is becoming scarce. Time is running out.

What? Can any of that be true?

Are you asking yourself: Why do I care? What is NASASP? Why should my organization pay membership to be an Associate Member of the Federal Surplus Property organization? What does it mean to me?

So...what's at stake? What's in it for you and the people your organization serves?

Let me answer it this way. If you don't care about the Federal Surplus donation program, its viability, the savings you've enjoyed, and your ability to help those who need it most...then there is nothing for you.

BUT... if you believe in the value of our program, if you've enjoyed paying less for useable equipment and supplies...if you believe in the value to the citizens of your community, our state, and indeed to the taxpayers of South Carolina and the United States, well then, there is a great deal in it for you!

The Federal Surplus Property Program is facing a serious decline of available excess federal property across our nation. South Carolina's Federal Surplus program is acquiring fewer supplies, tools, furniture, shop equipment, generators, and off road equipment...fewer health and medical equipment...all because of changes imposed by policy-makers in Washington. That means your organization will be paying more for those items, or helping fewer people.

Can you afford to lose this valuable program in South Carolina?? Can any State?

It's not too late. The property is still out there... but other organizations with stronger voices are getting to it before us!

By joining forces with states and people across the nation... people just like you... we can build an army to let those in Washington know how much we need this property. We must join together and tell them how federal surplus property is saving taxpayer dollars right here in South Carolina. Stand-up for South Carolina and be counted!

But what is NASASP and how can I be a member?

The National Association for State Agency for Surplus Property (NASASP) and its leadership are constantly monitoring developments and trends in the U. S. General Services Administration, at the Defense Department, and on Capitol Hill. There is strength in numbers. We will be heard!

We need YOU to help us get our State to the head of the line so that we can get more property to the people who need it most in our area! We need your support!!

If you, and others like you in every state join and stand with us, this Association's Voice will be recognized by Federal policy-makers, legislators, and administrators in Washington. We can get them to give us our fair share of property to help those who need it most in South Carolina.
